Acid attacks

The Met police will not tolerate any attack using corrosive and noxious substances on anyone and will bring offenders to justice.

We are working in partnership with forces nationally, the government and key industry stakeholders to reduce the opportunity of these offences being committed.

We will engage with the CPS and the judiciary to shape any future changes to regulations, legislation and policy.

We recognise the lasting impact on victims of corrosive attacks, and are improving our response through training, investment and joint working.

We would appeal to all parents, teachers and other agencies who work with young people to challenge those they think may be carrying corrosive substances, and work to divert them from committing a serious offence or being injured themselves.

We would encourage anyone who has been a victim of a corrosive attack to report it with confidence that you will be fully supported.

I will be away for the next 3 weeks any problems please email Wanstead.snt@met.police.uk or call 101/999

Regards,

PCSO 7233 Alan Winston
